[illegible]

[illegible] spirit [illegible] the struggle for the [illegible] in which the men whose [illegible] not have [illegible] to participate in, were engaged, is a convincing testimonial to the great value to our country of our citizen soldiery. Military men are apt to sneer at citizen soldiers. They forget Bennington & Kings mountain, almost pivotal points in the revolution as well as many brilliant conflicts in the great struggle in which the veterans became masters as actors.

I do not deem it quite the right thing to do, to exalt to the front rank the deeds of warfare. War is the cruelest, wickedest, most accursed method by which national disputes can be settled. There is nothing about it, not barbarous; and as far as my knowledge of history goes, there were never many wars in which the end to be attained, began to justify the means employed. Most wars have been waged not in the interest of permanent peace or the establishment of right, at least by one party, commonly by both. But it seems to me, that on the part of our Federal soldiers, in the strife for subduing the slave holders rebellion, raised against a majority rule is radically different. You fought to conquer a permanent peace; so though you were using bloody instruments, it was only that the rich boon of peace might appear after the tempest, presaging future fraternity between the belligerents. Thank God the rainbows promise is redeemed.

In this view of the case, I can regard it as [illegible] proper that the people [illegible] of the war to keep green in their hearts the memory of the deeds of these promoters of and peace; to take a sort of retrospect of the past; and see where our boys, as you were called, served, suffered and too many of them perished, that the country might enjoy the peace they conquered.

We have in our grave yards several graduates of the strife. The graduates of Co. B., you left two of them from our town on the banks of the Mississippi and some, I do not know how many, lingered under painful difficulties incurred in the trenches, or long marches under scorching suns, before final graduation. Homesickness was undoubtedly a great item conducing to the mortality of disease of many of our home loving boys. None but those who have experienced the anguish of real homesickness, if marches can be endured, short rations can be endured, soft, spongy, swampy ground to sleep on with no covering but the curtain of the skies can be endured; you have demonstrated that. Homesickness never relents, when other trials are thickest and most severe, its sting is sharpest. No wonder that some of our boys sank under its inflictions. Many times, undoubtedly, a struggle with the foe was a great blessing, relieving their minds of this incubus for a short time. The service of Co. B as I understand it, was mostly in tedious marches and finally in the trenches before Port Hudson. I think people but slightly realize, if at all the trials, discomforts of a long march, with knapsack and rations and arms and ammunition and blanket, if you had one, strapped to your shoulders, & if allowed to pause for a little rest! with nothing but Mississippi mud to sit down upon, and if [illegible]

a little embarrassed, for fear [illegible] to fight away the buffaloes and lizards and possibly rattlesnakes and Indians you took the offense, and drink to which the mouth of Mr Bell's waters might be preferred.
Seems funny, don't it, something of that sort the work and danger in the trenches about Vicksburg in front of an active and vindictive foe, watching for opportunities to send their messengers of death among you, are beyond any apprehension without [illegible] Vicksburg. All those hardships and dangers you passed through, and are now with us, good citizens, thanks God. It seems to you no doubt as it does to me, a dream for it seems as if no one could pass through such experiences only of the imagination, and vagaries of sleep. But they were terrible realities. Then after coming home, broken in health, as many of you were, we find among us, men shall I say (?), who daily [illegible] epithet U. S. traitor, if perchance you have the good fortune to get what all governments acknowledge to be the invalided soldiers right, a pension. (A pension, who would grudge a worthy invalided soldier his pension, should be made to march from New Orleans up the Mississippi with a negro on his back until he would acknowledge his obligation.

I will remember the difficulty of getting recruits from such material as the 52 d, at the time that Regt. was raised. No amount of money was thought too large, to vote bounty substitutes, no matter if it took a whole platoon of good soldiers to keep them in the ranks. Now the danger is passed. "Oh it don't seem as if there was very much to do, or to fear, I had about as lief gone as not." This is said by that kind of fellow, who, after receiving a [illegible] that the [illegible] is [illegible] to turn his back to his benefactor and join his enemies if one could be saved by his apostasy. You will find them occasionally everywhere, they would betray a whole community for a nickel. Some of the "stay at homes" talk, as if the entire army, almost, were made up of the riff raff of the country. They judge it by such as their conscience prompted them to buy substitutes, with hardly a wish that the sub. prove a good soldier. I am speaking only of a certain class when I say their only care was to shirk their duty on to somebody else. God are the fault finders about pensions. I have no pension and am in no way of ever having one, but God forgive me if I ever put my veto against a worthy pensioner. Why do Governments adopt the rule of pensioning soldiers? Because the work is so terrible that no nation can possibly think of sending men out on such duty without giving great inducements. It is an acknowledgment that such a duty cannot be compelled only at the point. Speaking of the character of our soldiers; some of you remember I was trusted with the duty of disbursing out Town bounties. One of the boys came to my house to get his money. I paid him $100., now see what he did with it. His old father was with him to give him his parting benediction. This son took $90. of his money and handing it to his father said "here take this you will need it more than I. You have always had a hard struggle to live and support us. $10. will help all I should need. Take good care of mother." I was deeply moved at this filial affection. That son and father never met again. Here are a few extracts from letters from one which I intended to read but I have not attempt it. They were only samples of epistles coming all over the loyal states like manna from heaven. This ability to write letters and opportunity so well improved went far in sustaining both the country and our beloved soldier sons, fathers and brothers. Boys - I know you were not all boys but you were at least 30 years younger than you are now; you have many if not all of you become heads of families of intelligent children ready to take our places as they become vacant. The vacation will soon come, early frosts have changed the color of your locks, it will soon be said there go another and another and still other veterans of the war, until all shall have sunk beneath the sod moistened with the blood of so many brave men but you will leave behind you, in the hearts of your countrymen a perpetual memory of your patriotism and your descendants will long be proud of their descent. When this country shall have become entirely reconciled to the condition in which the war has placed it, then shall songs of praise for your deeds be sounded by every tongue.

Resolutions in Memory of Capt. A. P. Nelson, Co. B, 52d regt. M. V. M

On the 6th of Jan. 1898 our beloved Captain answered the last roll call on earth and passed to the beyond. For many years he had suffered from a complication of diseases contracted while in the service of his country as a soldier fighting her battles. Seldom, if ever, a murmer or complaint escaped his lips, and alway a pleasant smile and cheery word greeted his comrades in arms. How well we all remember the command "attention Co. B." resounding in tones that signified his love and admiration for his command. That voice is now hushed in death, yet his memory will ever dwell with the boys, now when, who loved and respected him. It is therefore fitting that we, his comrades in arms should place upon record an expression of our love and esteem of our Capt. while in the army for the Union and our comrade in civil life. Therefore:- solved That in the death of our Captain, A. P. Nelson we loose from our ranks, our leader in the army, our President of these pleasant reunions, our beloved Captain and friend.

solved That while we mourn his loss by death his memory will be an inspiration to noble deeds well done:

solved That we his comrades extend to his wife that sympathy born of comradeship welded in the fire of battle and assure her that so far as we can, we would gladly carry the load of sorrow and loneliness resting upon her:

solved That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the wife of our beloved Captain and the same spread upon the records of the company.

4th That our civil war drenching the nation in the blood of the best and bravest, should be sufficient warning that "nations like men" shall reap what they sow," therefore we should never be less loyal than our brave Comrades for the preservation of American ideas, principal-mutual reservation or modification believing them to be sufficient to meet all emergencies if we and our Children are faithful to our duties as American Citizens.

5th That we as surviving Comrades recognize our duties to be no less now than then, to Resist, guard against the intrusion of ideas and doctrines hostile to Americanism in our civil and political relations, and as we overthrew the dogmas that led to the to the attempt to establish Chattel slavery under the flag as a political institution and pestilence the nation, so we propose to deal with any and all efforts to lower the dignity of the Citizen in its relations with All under its jurisdiction, giving to each and all the full Guarantee of Citizenship upon equal terms wherever the flag of the Republic floats as a symbol of United States authority.

Respectfully submitted

Signed.

Resolutions

[illegible] Record of Soldiers who enlisted in Co. B. 52d Regt M. V. M. in the War of the Rebellion to the credit of the Town of Rowe.

1 Henry D Thayer was [illegible] in 1844 - [illegible] Daniel and Flavilla Thayer, he enlisted as a private at Munroe August 27 1862. He died of Typhoid fever at Baton Rouge Feb. 5. 1863 without having been in any battles. He was a Soldier much liked by all Comrades - manly and obliging, ready to do for his country when the call came. Let us hope when the last call came, he was ready for the mansions above.

2 Eben Gifford was born in Munroe in 1840.
He enlisted at Munroe Aug. 27. 1862 as a private.
His parents were Rev. Jeremiah and Jane Stafford Gifford. His enlistment took place one day before he was 17 years old in the 52d Regiment - Mass Volunteers. He served his time, and when discharged he joined the Sharp Shooters. He was with Banks in his Campaign. But this mere boy hardly out of school was taken prisoner, Carried to Libby Prison and we all know the horrors of that place - the report is that he was true to a true and starved to death in 1864 for not divulging facts of the Union Army. Henry Gifford was born as a Lion with strength far beyond his years - always at his post -- when duty called - this sad story is only one of many of the noble youth of our country who died suffering untold torments, in the glorious cause of Liberty.

3 James H Payne was born in Ashfield May 8th 1842 He was the son of Calvin Payne of Rowe, and one of a large family. He enlisted as a private in Rowe Sept 3. 1862, he did Commendable service, took an active part in all the engagements, was a faithful Soldier. After the war he settled in Iowa - Married and became a very [illegible] for his family and [illegible] of this world's goods. He died at Corning Ia Iowa Feb 29 1924

4 Nathaniel R Rice was born in Rome Aug 20th 1843 he enlisted at Greenfield Sept. 3rd 1862 in Co. F 33rd R.
He went to Camp Miller - ever faithful and true to his duties. When the Co. arrived at Berry's Landing, he had general command of the [illegible] [illegible]. Ammie and on the march from Berry's Landing, he fell down unconscious - he at length revived but was not able to go on duty - in June he was sent to the Hospital in Baton Rouge, but was able to join the Company a few days before leaving for home. He was a true and faithful friend, and had a character of sterling worth. His home was at Poplar Bluff Missouri when he died soon after his return.
He was the son of Deacon Stebbins Rice of Rome, and by profession a Baptist Minister. He was never Married. The immediate cause of his death was a fe to which he was called out - he took a severe cold, f which he never recovered.

J. Frank Brown

J. F. Brown was born in Rowe Mass Mar. 20. 1829 and died at Zoar Mass Dec. 21. 1903

His death was accidental while he and Mrs Brown were in the act of boarding a train at Zoar on the Boston & Maine road they were struck by a west bound freight train and he instantly killed

Mr Brown was one of the most respected citizens of Rowe in the town in which he was born and lived nearly all his days

When a young man he went to Ogle County Ill. to take charge of a large farm.

At the breaking out of the civil war he returned to his native State and in the Fall of 1862 enlisted into Company B. 52. Reg serving under General Banks in the Red River and Port-Hudson campaign.

Upon the expiration of his term he reinlisted as a member of the second Mass. light-artillery and took part of in the seige of Mobile. Still later he inlisted for the third time and served till the end of the war.

To this patriotic service in arms he added in the remaining years of his life an equally devoted service as a citizen interested in all good causes an intelligent observer of national events independent and outspoken in his political actions. He served his town through many years in its various official positions with great fidelity

He was entrusted with many business responsibilities in the settlement of estates and in other directions.

He was a member of the Sanford G. A. R. Post of North Adams

His burial was at the Green River cemetery Greenfield Mass
